

Conduct Consultants:

Conduct Consultants are volunteers. These volunteers can be a resource for any student involved in the student conduct process. They can aid students in understanding their due process rights and may assist students preparing for case management conferences or formal hearings. The role of a Conduct Consultant is to help the student understand the process, but not to speak on their behalf nor represent the student in a conduct process. Conduct Consultants have received basic training in the student conduct process from Student Conduct staff.

Students interested in connecting with a Conduct Consultants should reach out to one of the individuals listed below. Students should not email everyone on the list at the same time. If the first Conduct Consultant contacted does not respond, then students may reach out to another person on the list. Student Conduct is not responsible for Conduct Consultants not responding, and a lack of response from a Conduct Consultant is not grounds to reschedule a case management conference or hearing. Similarly, the lack of response from Conduct Consultants is not grounds for an appeal. If students have questions or concerns about the Conduct Consultant program, they can contact the Student Conduct office at (309) 438-8621 or via email at: studentconduct@ilstu.edu.
